

A PLACE THIS EXTRAORDINARY

Deserves an extraordinary way to plan.

The character of Trades Hall.
The possibility of every event.
Beautifully brought together.

THE GRAND HALL / VENUE PHOTOGRAPH

01 / THE PLACE

Let the room make the first impression.

Give someone a feeling for the venue before they ever walk through the door.

Captured spaces and room photography bring the atmosphere into the conversation, wherever your client happens to be.

— A more inviting beginning to an enquiry.

THE RECEPTION ROOM

Imagine the occasion.

CAPTURED VENUE / 3D VIEW

One room. So many possibilities.

Bring an idea into the room. Explore furniture arrangements and make the plan something everyone can see.

Reception

Try a different occasion. These illustrative layouts demonstrate the idea, without changing venue plans.

A busy venue. A clearer day.

Bring the diary, room plans and equipment into the same conversation.

01 See the week. Understand how the rooms fit together.

02 See the detail. Open the event behind the booking.

03 Keep the context. Connect the room with the setup.

✓ Your team keeps authority over bookings and changes.

A helping hand. Your judgement.

The ambition: describe what you need, explore a prepared suggestion, then decide what works for your venue.

Conversational planning is the vision. This scripted example shows the intended experience, with venue staff in control of the final decision.

PRODUCT VISION / SCRIPTED EXAMPLE

Planning, in conversation

A future Venviewer experience

Could we turn the afternoon reception into a seated dinner?

Let's work through the change.

We would compare the room layout, available furniture and the time needed for the reset.

A SUGGESTION TO REVIEW

Reception to dinner

- ✓ Explore a seated arrangement
- ✓ Identify equipment to check
- ✓ Surface timing implications

VENUE REVIEW BEFORE ANY CHANGE

Illustration only. No live AI request or booking action.

From the plan to the people who make it happen.

Carry the agreed room setup into the working day, with a layout and equipment sheet the team can take with them.

— Less interpretation between the office and the floor.

More room for what matters.

The business case starts with a better experience for the people on both sides of an event.

FOR YOUR CLIENTS

A place they can picture.

Help a prospective client understand the space and have a more informed planning conversation.

Outcomes to validate together: enquiry quality, planning time, handover clarity and team confidence.

FOR YOUR TEAM

A plan they can share.

Bring visual layouts and operational detail together, with fewer separate explanations to reconcile.

FOR THE BUSINESS

A foundation that can grow.

Develop the experience with Trades Hall, then explore how the approach could serve other venues.

FOR ELAINE & THE TRADES HALL TEAM

Your extraordinary place. Our shared possibility.

Let's shape a planning experience worthy of the rooms you look after.

A Venviewer showcase. Prepared for conversation.
Illustrative examples throughout, with future ambitions identified.
